

SITUATION UNCHANGED, IS THE LATEST REPORT FROM MEXICO CITY

HUERTA STILL HOLDS ON DESPITE RUMORS THAT HE IS GOING TO RESIGN SHORTLY.

CONDITIONS UNCERTAIN

President Wilson Announces He Sees No Immediate Necessity for Closing Embassy at Capital.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Mexico City, Nov. 17.—The report was revived today that General Huerta intends to resign on the convening of congress in regular session on Thursday. It was based on the alleged decision of a member of the new cabinet of deputies.

is inevitable. An early severance of relations between Mexico as represented by the Huerta government and the United States is regarded here today as inevitable. None of the newspapers, whether printed in English or Spanish, published more than the briefest dispatches today touching the situation. In none was indication given of the intentions of Washington toward Mexico.

Course Uncertain. Whether the United States embassy is to remain or be immediately withdrawn appears to be a matter of which Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American chargé d'affaires, himself, is uncertain. The staff of the embassy is ready to leave at a moment's notice and little surprise was felt here although much alarm would be caused, in case Mr. O'Shaughnessy and his establishment should take the evening train to Vera Cruz.

Considerable Gossip. There was considerable gossip in political circles today of further changes in the Mexican cabinet. Aureliano Blanquet, minister of finance, is said to have had a misunderstanding with President Huerta which may cause him to leave his post. With the departure of Manuel Garza Aldape, late minister of the interior, the number of business concerns who have lost one of its most level-headed members, an official whose moderation could be depended upon. His successor has not yet been chosen.

Seeks Organization. In the meeting Gen. Huerta is proceeding with his efforts to organize the new congress, regardless of the notice given to him by John Lind, that serious consequences would follow such a step.

It was expected today that a further attempt would be made this afternoon to organize the senate, as Saturday's efforts failed owing to the lack of quorum.

Refugees Safe. Vera Cruz, Nov. 17.—American families arrived here from Mexico City this morning and reported that a general exodus was beginning. Many more are expected tonight and a still greater number tomorrow morning.

Americans Escape. Mexico City, Nov. 17.—Many American citizens have reached here from smaller towns in the interior of Mexico today and declared that the situation has reached its most acute state. A number of business concerns whose headquarters are abroad, have received cabled instructions to send the women and children of their employees out of the federal capital. A man arrived from Vera Cruz last night, who claimed to be a messenger from John Lind, with whom authority was not known, and who urged the immediate departure of all Americans—men, women and children.

All Representatives Safe. All the members of foreign congresses are still here and it is not anticipated that any of them will leave their posts even in case of intervention.

Admiral Von Hintze, the German minister, declared today that he believes there is no reason for anxiety. "A plan is being considered," he said, "by which armed intervention will most surely be avoided."

Washington, Nov. 17.—Secretary Bryan was at his office early today reading over daily dispatches from Charge O'Shaughnessy at Mexico City. The secretary was non-committal about the situation, declaring that the next move would be expected.

Reports that the American embassy would be closed and Charge O'Shaughnessy withdrawn were persistent again today, but no confirmation was obtainable. High officials were reticent to discuss any phase of the report.

To Protect Germans. Berlin, Nov. 17.—Admiral Paul von Hintze, the German minister in Mexico, has ordered the cruiser Nuernberg, now on the Pacific coast off Mexico, to proceed to San Blas to take on board any German fugitives from the city of Tepic, now threatened by insurgents. Private steamers are to be chartered if the Nuernberg is unable to reach San Blas in time.

Wilson's Views. Washington, Nov. 17.—President Wilson does not regard the Mexican situation as requiring the closing of the American embassy. He is waiting reports to that effect today, he said Charge O'Shaughnessy neither had been told to come back. While details as to the situation had changed, the main circumstances remain substantially the same as when the president previously expressed a favorable view of the situation.

Not Changed. Summing up the status of affairs the president indicated that while the personal attitude of Gen. Huerta might have changed the circumstances upon which the American government based its conviction that Huerta's elimination is inevitable have not changed at all. "The mills of the gods grind slowly," expresses the slow and steady purposes being pursued.

No Changes. The White House that the preliminary resignation of Minister Aldape did not affect materially the American plan, as it was pointed out that no scheme that this government might have could very well depend upon the permanency of any member of the Huerta cabinet.

No Lack of Confidence. The president made it plain that the changes in the situation had not impaired confidence here in the ultimate solution of the problem by peaceful means.

Official denial was made at the White House of a report that pan American mediation was contemplated and it was reiterated that no mediation of any kind had been offered to either faction.

Prater Americans. On representation made by Consul Edwards, Friends Babin, an American reported in danger of execution, will be released at Juarez.

Rear Admiral Dusen of the battleship Louisiana has been instructed to demand the release of several Americans detained by the constitutionalists at Tuxtla.

DEMAND FOR LABOR SHOWS A DECREASE

Factory Employees Out of Work in Many Cities of Wisconsin Says Commission's Report.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Nov. 17.—Demand for labor is falling off and unemployment is increasing according to reports received by the Industrial Commission from the state employment offices. These conditions prevail in most parts of the state except that in the north where operations and delayed railroad and construction work are keeping the demand up. Skilled mechanics and factory employees are out of work in great numbers in the larger cities. The work available is mainly common labor, much of it outside work.

Help wanted at the Milwaukee Free Employment Office decreased 20 per cent with October, 1913, as compared with October, 1912. Applications for work increased almost 70 per cent. Outside of Milwaukee the decrease in demand has been slight, but the increase in the applicants for work has been considerable. A superior there was an increase both in demand for labor and in supply.

A slackening labor market is customary during the fall months, but this year the slack season began earlier and the number of workers laid off is greater than usual.

Despite the decrease in demand the state employment offices have found positions for a greater number of workers this year than last. October, 1913, 2,800; October, 1912, 1,500. Many factory workers from Milwaukee have been sent out of town to lumber camps and construction work, as well as to factories in the smaller cities. There is no excuse for any employer being without help at the present time. The State Free Employment offices can meet every demand.

LA FOLLETTE STARTS POLITICAL ACTIVITY BY INVADING SOUTH

Wisconsin Senator Is Evidently Preparing to Swing Southern Republicans to His Standard.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Nov. 17.—While so far he has been given little mention in the press, the friends of Senator La Follette assure that he will again be a formidable candidate for the presidency, and certain developments of late indicate that he is making a forehanded move in the direction of capturing the nomination. This move may be termed his "invasion of the south." For years Senator La Follette has had far more calls for lectures than he could fill. These calls have come from all parts of the United States, great many of them from the south. However, Senator La Follette has confined most of his lecturing to the northwest and the far west. It would appear that this year he will build up a political following in the south promising and effective field, while at the same time getting the usual platform returns.

The republicanism of the eastern states being dominated by big conservative leaders, it is in the south, his program, there would be little hope for him to capture any machinery in that section, while the republicanism of the south has always been in the hands of the republican administration at Washington, being built up largely upon the patronage dispensed from the capital. Accordingly, a practical politician like La Follette would see little personal advantage in going into that territory. Now that the republicans are out, however, it is apparently anybody's race in the south and La Follette with characteristic forethought has apparently "jumped in." He has at last accepted speaking engagements in Dixie. For a fortnight Senator La Follette has been making from one to two speeches a day at various places and has been received with great cordiality by his hearers. The fact that the senator supported the tariff bill seems to have added to his popularity in that section.

The strikers number about 450.

Should the strike be long continued it is believed the mills, employing 5,000 operatives, would be forced to shut down, owing to the law which prohibits the operation of manufacturing establishments for more than one week without licensed firemen. TO TRY YOUNG GIRL UPON MURDER CHARGE

Letha Perdue, Sixteen Years Old, Must Stand Trial for Killing Her Brother-in-Law.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Huntington, W. Va., Nov. 17.—The term of court which convened today in the little town of Wayne, the seat of the county of the same name and situated some fifteen miles south of the town, will be made notable by the trial of one of the most sensational cases of alleged murder in the history of this section. The defendant is Letha Perdue, a pretty girl who only recently passed her sixteenth birthday. The victim of the tragedy was the girl's brother-in-law, James Kendrick, twenty-six years old and a member of the fire department of this city. On the afternoon of June 11 last, Kendrick was shot and killed in the Perdue home near the village of Kellogg and only a short distance across the county line from this city. The Perdue girl made no attempt to deny that she fired the fatal shots.

"That the defense will probably rely upon a plea of the 'unwritten law' is indicated by the girl's statement to the effect that she killed Kendrick because he had wronged her. Relatives of the slain man, however, vigorously deny that any such cause existed for the tragedy and they have announced their intention to aid in the prosecution of the young girl."

On the day of the tragedy Kendrick had gone to the Perdue home to get his little child, born to the father's union over six years ago with a sister of the girl who killed him. Kendrick, according to the girl's statement, was engaged to be married to a girl named Letha Perdue, who was his second wife, a bride of three weeks. As Kendrick stepped into the dining room, Letha Perdue entered the room from the other side.

The question was asked as to whether the petitions could circulate the petitions and the attorney general said that the petitions must be circulated by a voter, but there is no objection to a woman accompanying a voter.

Many Radical Changes Go Into Effect Today—New Early Morning Train for Milwaukee.

Effective at once there will be several radical changes in the arrival and departure of certain Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul trains. For people who desire an earlier arrival at Milwaukee a train will be operated from here leaving at 6:15 daily except Monday, running to Alton and Milton Junction, connection at Milton Junction being made with No. 4, which is an early Madison to Milwaukee train arriving in Milwaukee at 9:20 a. m. This train, which makes the Milwaukee train connection at Milton Junction, will handle the transfer of the Chicago and intermediate point passengers from the Madison to Milwaukee train and return to Janesville, leaving for Chicago at 9:30 a. m. This is the same train that has been leaving. The 7:20 a. m. train operating from here to Milwaukee will leave the same as usual. The other morning Milwaukee train which has been leaving at 10:40, will now leave at 10:48. The departure time of the afternoon Milwaukee train remains as it has been, 4:40.

The afternoon Madison train which has been leaving at 2:45, now leaves five minutes earlier. The last evening train for Madison now leaves at 3:35, ten minutes earlier than formerly. This train does not operate through to Madison, but will deliver at Milton Junction to the Milwaukee train to Madison train, a coach and parlor car. The balance of this train returns to Janesville, bringing the Milwaukee passengers, arriving here at 9:25.

The train which has been leaving here at 11:15 for Beloit and Rockford, which makes connection at Beloit for Delavan, Elkhorn and Racine, and also for Freeport, now leaves at 11:00 a. m.

The 7:20 a. m. train for Chicago will now make the stop at Avalon. The 12:45 a. m. train out of here which has been making the Avalon stop, will now stop only to let off passengers from Janesville and other points on the Mineral Point division.

STREET CARS CRASH ON SUNDAY NIGHT

Refusal of Brakes to Work Causes Accident on West Milwaukee Street—No One is Hurt.

Failure of the brakes to work while going down the slight incline toward the Milwaukee street bridge, caused a collision of the Franklin street and depot cars Sunday night, at the intersection of River and Milwaukee streets. Both cars carried passengers, who escaped with only a slight shaking up.

The Franklin car was waiting in front of the bank building, for passengers transferring across the bridge, when the depot car crashed into it, the force sending it across the street. Both cars suffered broken fenders and several panes of glass were smashed in the foremost car.

NATAL CELEBRATION FOR JOHN SHERMAN

Chairman of Town of Fulton Since 1885 and Pioneer of Rock County Observes Seventy-second Birthday.

(SPECIAL TO THIS GAZETTE.)

Edgerton, Wis., Nov. 17.—John Sherman, chairman of Fulton township, on Sunday, Nov. 16, surrounded by his nine children, celebrated his seventy-second birthday at his farm home one and a half miles east of the city. The event opened with a big dinner about one o'clock and the remainder of the day was spent in various amusements. In remembrance of the occasion Mr. Sherman was presented with a handsome gift by the children.

But few men the age of Mr. Sherman can boast of better health than he, being exceedingly well preserved and reading and writing readily without the wearing of glasses.

Mr. Sherman is a native of Allegheny county, New York, settling in Fulton township in 1854. At the opening of the Civil war he enlisted in Company F, Fifth Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, receiving an honorable discharge in 1866.

On his return from the army Mr. Sherman resumed farm life in Fulton township for three years. He then purchased sixty acres of land, to which he added from time to time, and now possesses 213 acres, making it one of the model farms of Rock county, improved with good buildings and equipped with modern improvements and appliances.

In 1874 Mr. Sherman married Miss Catherine Welch of Edgerton. She died July 10, 1894, leaving ten children, the second eldest, Catherine, also passing away several years thereafter at the age of twenty-five. Those surviving in the order of their birth are: Eva M., Addie G. (now Mrs. C. W. Britton of Stoughton, Wis.); John B., Philip H., Edward C., Agnes E., Grace L., Lawrence F. and Leonard, all of whom, with one exception, reside at home.

Mr. Sherman has always taken a commendable interest in public matters and has been called to numerous local offices which he has honorably filled. For twenty-nine years he has served as treasurer of joint school district No. 7 of his home town, to which office he again was re-elected last year. For several years he was a member of the town board, and his work proved so highly satisfactory that in 1885 when placed at the head of the ticket as chairman it resulted in his election on the democratic ticket—after which he has held continually ever since, in spite of opposition at each election. As a member of the Rock County Board of Supervisors he is a prominent member of the board of equalization and of the bridge committee.

As chairman of Fulton township Mr. Sherman has also taken a deep interest in the good roads movement, building fourteen miles within a few years.

Mr. Sherman may justly be called one of the representative men of Rock county, having been here for the past fifty-nine years. He has witnessed its changes and growth from a state of wildness and its development into a region of fertile, highly cultivated and productive farms, until it has come to be known as one of the garden spots of the state. In this development and growth Mr. Sherman has done his full share and richly merits a place among those who have placed faithful and well to make Rock county what it is today.

STOLE DRESSED MEAT FROM A FREIGHT CAR

Thief Hides Two Legs of Mutton But Eeety is Soon Discovered—Women Witness Theft.

Two legs of mutton were stolen from a refrigerator car on a north-bound St. Paul train this morning while it was standing on a siding just beyond St. Mary's avenue. Two women, Mrs. George I. Shook and Mrs. Legora Rooney, saw the thief come out of the car and run away after another train approached. The meat was found by Hiramman William Nolan concealed in a pile of ties at the side of the track. He informed Yardmaster John J. Kelly of the theft, who passed the information on to Agent J. Zimmerman. With Patrolman Peter Chapman and Patrick Fanning he at once proceeded to make an investigation.

After a brief search of the vicinity the police came upon a man who wore a brown suit and red necktie, as the two women reported. He was unable to give a very satisfactory account of himself but the women declared that he was not the right man and he was given his liberty. The car was full of meat consisting of mutton, Edgerton, and Madison markets. Some consigned to Janesville had been removed. Two boxes had been opened and the cloth covering a barrel of meat but, but nothing had been taken from the meat was from a Chicago packing house.

TESTIMONY OF DOGS CALLED IN QUESTION

Defense in Case of the State Versus Charles Leng Will Attempt to Discredit Evidence.

Attempts to discredit the evidence of bloodhounds will be made by the defense in the case of the State versus Charles Leng in which a preliminary examination was held at the municipal court today. Leng, who has been at liberty under $500 bonds since his arrest on September 27, is charged with stealing $20 from William Wolmar of Orfordville on the night of September 27. The robbery was committed under peculiar circumstances, the thief obtaining the money by drawing Mr. Wolmar's trousers through the window by means of a stick with a nail in one end. The Beloit bloodhounds in charge of Deputy Sheriff Lanhpar, were put on the trail and twice followed it to Mr. Leng's house.

Mr. Lanhpar was placed on the witness stand this morning and underwent cross-examination by District Attorney Stanley Duawiddle and J. J. Cunningham, attorney for the defendant. The state concluded its testimony and adjournment was taken until 2:30 p. m.

Adjournment was taken until Wednesday, Nov. 26, for the purpose of hearing further testimony.

DIRECTORS OF CLUB AT WEEKLY MEETING

Commercial Club Members Discuss Factory Propositions at Grand Hotel.

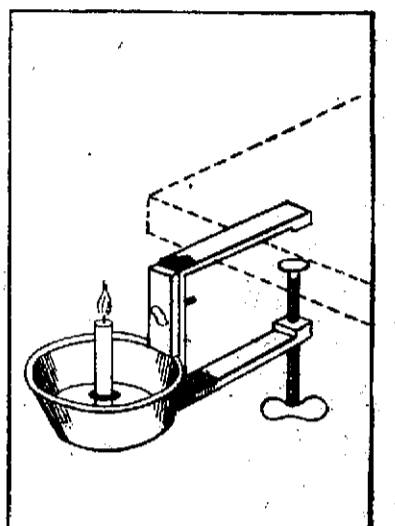

The regular meeting of the directors of the Commercial Club occurred today at the Grand Hotel and a final report on a motorcycle factory was presented. The inventory and facts presented did not prove of enough value to warrant further investigation and it was decided to drop the affair. Many propositions are presented to the Commercial club for consideration which fail to substantial value after investigation.

Nothing of further importance was presented at the meeting. President Jas. Fifield called the meeting to order.

ODD CANDLE-HOLDER

Enables Mechanic to Get Light in Out-of-Way Corners.

An ingenious candle-holder that will be a big help to carpenters and other mechanics has been invented by a New York man. A bracket with open jaws and a thumb screw to fasten it to any surface has a tube with a candle to hold the candle attached to it. There are often dark corners in buildings where very careful work is required and it has been a great problem to get light on the work. The mechanic usually "gets in his own light," as the expression goes. In this emergency the candle-holder shown here will come in handy. It can be made fast to any end of a board or other projection, and give the desired illumination. Even where an ordinary candle-holder could be used this has the advantage that it will not tip over.

Sport Snap Shots

Jack Ryder, the Cincinnati sport scribe, has a word or two to say regarding Jonny McGraw and his pennant winning Giants. Summing up what Ryder has to say, we find that he considers the Giants themselves as more or less of a bunch of dubs. McGraw, Ryder should be given every bit of the credit for the pennants that have fluttered in the breeze over the Polo grounds. Ryder, writing in the Enquirer, expresses the following: "This paper has consistently maintained for some time that the Giants are a stupid and second-rate club, driven to success in their league race by the splendid and forceful management of John McGraw, and helped by the clemency of the other clubs in the league who could beat them out if equally well handled. Without McGraw, the Giants would have a tough battle to stay in the first division. With McGraw, any one of the four clubs in the league would have a chance for the pennant, and all for world probably beat the Giants. The reason the Giants have won the pennant is solely and simply because McGraw is smarter, more resourceful, a quicker thinker, and a better handler of men than any other manager in the National League, now that Frank Chance has left the old organization."

A current magazine comments editorially on the unfortunate wont of sport writers, to couch their remarks in a vernacular that is quite incoherent to one unfamiliar with the meanings of their carefully hedged phrases. The magazine, in planning the sport page replete with sporting colloquialism, points out that it is a matter of difficulty for the average person to gather the import. It would seem that giving the thing a little thought that this view is somewhat overdrawn. Anyone sufficiently interested in baseball—and the baseball reports are the ones at issue here—can pick up the sport page and pursue its contents without being apt to be familiar with the most of the baseball expressions. If the magazine in question presents such terms as "bunting," a player or "walling" the horsehide," they had best withdraw from the argument, for such idioms as those mentioned are part of the game. Some writers like to overdo the thing and rack their brains for a vernacular here and there unheard of. But they are in the minority and the average American when he picks up the leading advertising medium is able to find out how many hits O'Grady got yesterday.

"There is no reason why the Federal league should not be able to operate," says Garry Herrmann, "if they can survive the competition and are willing to play fair." And this is the way Herrmann sized up the situation at a recent dinner at Columbus given for the delegates of the minor league convention. Baseball cannot be confined to the teams that operate under the national agreement, said Herrmann, and the game is certainly open to all. However, Garry pointed out with a degree of conviction that the national commission will make every effort to see that contracts are respected and that players held under reserve for a money consideration will be held to their agreement.

If there's any more ticket scalping done at the world's series in New York in the future it will not be because efforts have not been made to bring the thing to a halt. An investigation by the county authorities there has brought to light some very unpleasant facts concerning the resale of the tickets. At the latest series some 1,200 $3 tickets were handled through the hotel agencies and individual scalpers. As a result of the manner in which some of these tickets were procured several arrests are to be made. As it is, an ordinance will be presented at the board of aldermen that will make ticket scalping in future a precarious means of livelihood. The ordinance varies not at all from the laws that to all other New York places of amusement.

year Chicago proved superior to Minnesota by a score of 13 to 7, the victory giving the Maroons practically clear way for the big nine conference title. Both teams fought desperately, Chicago jumping into an early lead when Colquhoun, Goepfer, quarter dropped a punt, Chicago recovering and sending Gray across for the initial marker. Another Minnesota blunder gave the Maroons their scoring chance and they made the most of it. Coach Williams' men came back strong in the final quarter and played Chicago off their feet, battering down Stagg's defense for their only touchdown.

Clipping out of the game, for losing his head and slugging an opponent, Purdue were given a toe to toe battle against Illinois. Both teams were unable to push a man across the goal line. Victory had been conceded to Purdue, but the spread formations and stonewall defense of Illinois, gave them a tie battle. Northwestern, rallied by their playing against the Maroons, only failed to trim Indiana by a goal, the final statistics showing Northwestern trailing a 21 to 20 score. Marquette with a crippled eleven played rings around St. Louis by a 24 to 0 score. The defense of the St. Louis team was very weak and the Milwaukee backs reeled off thirty yard runs without effort. Strong defense by Marquette only allowed St. Louis to make their downs three times during the four periods. The Wisconsin team made valuable use of the pass to cover ground. Lawrence forced Ripon to howl to the sting of defeat, whitewashing them to a line of 12 to 0. Ripon fought gamely but Lawrence hampered her way through Ripon's wings to victory. Beloit had their hands full in subduing Knox, but turned the trick by a 14 to 7 score.

High school state championship differences were given a settlement Saturday and Sparta and Oshkosh, who have played one tie game, will be the contenders for the honors. Sparta routed away with Chippewa Falls 20 to 6, and Ashland was licked by Oshkosh 6 to 0.

Western Games. In one of the hardest games of the local high school, and graduates of the school, are planning on having an annual game this year, the date being on Thanksgiving. The idea is a good one, and unless the regions have a contest with some outside school on that day, the matter may be considered. Such men as Fatter, a catcher, half back last year; Cannon, at center; Wilkinson, tackle; Joe Ryan at fullback; Korst at halfback, and perhaps Eider, now of Beloit college, and a member of the school eleven last year, may be in the line-up. Of course too many good men might make the score one-sided, but the contest nevertheless would be interesting.

Beards in England and Russia.
In England beards were not fashionable after the conquest (1066) until the thirteenth century, and were discontinued at the restoration. Peter the Great enjoined the Russians, even those of rank, to shave. But so fond were they of their long, flowing beards that they refused, so Peter sent out his soldiers with shaving mugs and razors to destroy every beard they could find.

Animals Resent Keeper's Absence.
The keeper of the Washington park zoo in Milwaukee finds that it is not well for him to leave the baby animals, of which there are always a few on hands. When he leaves the young leopards or other infants they are likely to sulk and make themselves ill, and as he is very fond of all of them he takes very few vacations, and only when there are no young animals that particularly need his care.

STOUGHTON DEFEATS LOCALS IN GAME OF THRILLS SATURDAY

Blue and White Fail to Hold Lead, After Outplaying Rivals in First Half—Score 14 to 9.
Janesville highs lost to Stoughton for the second time of the season, on Saturday afternoon by the score of 14 to 9. The sidelines at the Driving Park were crowded with fully five hundred rookers, and despite their cheering, the locals could not register the much needed touchdowns, after playing in the dark the last quarter. When the game was called by Referee Koch, there was still seven minutes to play, but it was so dark the crowd could not see the players on the field, and the players could not see the ball. Janesville outplayed Stoughton at every stage of the game. Atwood, Dalton and Dearborn began going down the field on the first kickoff, making it first down seven successive times, and bringing the ball to the twelve yard line from where Atwood sent a beautiful drop kick directly between the uprights, registering three points for the locals, after three minutes of play. Following these disheartening touchdowns coming in the third period, the game might yet be won, and called for a change of the forty yard line, from where he tore down the left side of the field, through the entire Stoughton eleven, placing the ball squarely back of the posts. He failed to kick the goal. This left the score 14 to 9.

A trick attempt to score was made in the last quarter, after it became so dark that the ball could not be seen. It was Stoughton's ball on the Janesville 28 yard line, and Jerdee passed a headgear to Dearborn. Jerdee then took the perskin and traveled at a fast rate of speed, while the referee was blowing the whistle. He crossed the goal but the ball was brought back and time was called by the referee.

During the conflict, Stoughton made it first down twice, while Janesville averaged eight times each quarter. These figures show that luck played an important part in the conflict. From the first quarter, all Janesville. Always on the jump. They carried the ball down the field to the twelve yard line from where Atwood bottled the drop kick. The rest of the quarter was played in Stoughton territory with the ball in Janesville's possession.

The second period was more even. Stoughton, however, having been forced to send her fullback, Jerdee, around the ends in order to make first down. Janesville closed the quarter with the ball in her possession on the Stoughton 25 yard line. The third period ended some scoring, for both sides. A pass to Sullivan from Jerdee, with the ball in Stoughton's possession on the local fifteen yard line, sent the first score over for the Swedes. Within two minutes, Jerdee intercepted a pass on Janesville's 25 yard line, and escaped being tackled, crossing the goal line at the extreme end, barely keeping inside of the side line. Both goals were kicked by Mickelson. Janesville then took a brace, and rushed the ball up the field forty yards. A penalty of 15 yards placed the ball on the Stoughton 42 yard line. Dalton on a shift, executed a beautiful pass.

to Atwood, and the latter gained in speed until he was in safe territory to score. The crowd went wild, for this run was the most spectacular moment of the game. Atwood ran so hard, that Jerdee, Stoughton's fast fullback, and a speed marvel, was left in the rear by fifteen yards, when the goal line was crossed. The fourth quarter was played for eight minutes, in the dark. Stoughton scored, but the score was not allowed. Final score, Janesville, 9; Stoughton, 14.

WRIGLEY'S SPEARMINT

is causing unscrupulous persons to wrap rank imitations that are not even real chewing gum so they resemble genuine WRIGLEY'S SPEARMINT. The better class of stores will not try to fool you with these imitations. They will be offered to you principally by street fakirs, peddlers and the candy departments of some 5 and 10 cent stores. These rank imitations cost dealers one cent a package or even less and are sold to careless people for almost any price.

If you want Wrigley's look before you buy. Get what you pay for.

Be sure it's WRIGLEY'S

We are inserting this advertisement solely to protect our customers, who are continually writing us that they have been deceived by imitations which they purchased thinking they were WRIGLEY'S.

THE SECRETARY OF LABOR.
President Wilson has occasion to feel humiliated over the action of his new cabinet incumbent, William Bauchop Wilson, secretary of labor. This new portfolio was created in the interests of labor, not as a class, but as a whole. Secretary Wilson is now in Seattle attending a convention of the American Federation of Labor. The opening paragraph of his address says:

Fellow Unionists: The Department of Labor as now organized and directed, will be utilized to co-operate with the great trade union movement in its effort to elevate the standard of human society."

The Inter Ocean in commenting, says:

"This is pretty plain notice to about 20,000,000 American citizens engaged in gainful occupations that the Hon. William Bauchop Wilson does not consider their interests worthy of his distinguished attention, since they are not members of labor unions, and that the only citizens whom he does consider worthy of such attention are the 2,000,000 or so who are members of labor unions affiliated with the American Federation."

That's about all there is to it. The government is made a scape-goat by a cabinet member, by not only recognizing but fostering a labor combine which has caused more trouble than all other combinations in existence.

The Seattle convention advocates unionizing all government employees, and it is safe to assume that Secretary Wilson favors the movement.

TO BE REGRETTED.

The failure of the county board to make the appropriation necessary to secure a superintendent of agriculture, will be regretted by many people who believe in progress, and who have a wholesome respect for scientific knowledge.

The corn contest, which the Gazette has been conducting for the past six months, at a cost of five hundred dollars, was intended to stimulate ambition in the minds of Rock county boys, and incidentally to show their fathers what could be done by way of increasing production.

The outcome, so far as the boys are concerned, is not a matter of doubt, and the object lesson at close range, should convince any unprejudiced mind that scientific methods can be applied to farming, as well as to all other lines of business.

The boys have demonstrated that half the land usually devoted to corn in Rock county, is capable of producing as many bushels of corn as has heretofore been raised on double the acreage.

That kind of knowledge is worth money, not only to the boy's father, but to every farmer in the county. It not only shows him how to increase production, but it adds value to every acre of land he owns.

The farmers of Rock county are intelligent and successful, but there never comes a time in any life when it is too old to learn, and this was the thought which inspired the effort to secure the county instructor.

The value of a farm or of a business is determined by what it will earn on the capital invested, and anything that will increase the earning power, without materially adding to the expense, is worth adopting.

The board was undoubtedly influenced by the rapidly increasing state expenses, and the heavy taxes in sight. This could be the only valid reason for objection, but the only way to effect reform, along this line, is to turn the rascals out.

THE TANGO.

The Milwaukee Sentinel finds time to pause and remark, "Of course you Tango?" and then goes on to say:

"The country has gone dance mad. Never in the history of society has the ballroom been so exclusively the center of first interest as it is today. Even auction bridge, with its fine conversational points of high shades, the ethics of the convention bid, the new nullo count and a dozen or more other bits of vernacular equally unintelligible to the uninitiated and equally fascinating as a source of argument wherever the language of bridge is spoken, sinks into oblivion, let one of the players so much as hum a strain of 'You Great Big, Blue-eyed Baby,' or 'Too Much Mustard.'"

"Staid business men are spending hours each week in the effort to master the intricacies of the new dances. One by one, with many apologies, they have joined one or more of the dancing classes, announcing that they merely wished to learn enough of the tango to protect themselves against the charge of old-fashionedness. And then, once the blood of the tango has gotten into their veins, they have rushed madly from one new dance to another, unsatisfied to turn with the maxixe, the hesitation waltz, the one step, the skip Boston, the castle walk, the horse trot, and all the other combin-tions of dips and glides, and still-kneed shuffles which have banished (temporarily) the old time waltz and two-step.

"Whatever else may be the merits of the tango, it has stirred things up and anything which makes life brighter, and richer in the diversion too often lost sight of in the mad stress of business is to be welcomed with open arms. Besides, think of what it means to the dancing instructors—and they are legion these days.

"If you need money and need it quick, quality to teach the tango. It seems to be the golden opportunity of the year 1913."

Next Saturday will practically mark the end of the football season for the colleges and universities. The past few weeks have been full of surprises for the followers of the game and even men who have never seen the inside of a college are ardent rooters for their favorite institution. Thus far football has been saved from commercialism such as baseball has undergone and still remains an amateur sport.

Evidently Janesville has a pyromaniac who feels it his duty to destroy property. Too many mysterious blazes accompanied by destruction of property have occurred in the past few months to escape merely a passing notice. The authorities should investigate and make an example of the culprit.

What will the harvest be? This is the problem that confronts the Mexican revolutionists. They feel assured that they will win out, but when? Huerta still holds control of the federal government and the so-called constitutionalists must get it out in isolated districts.

If the hen continues on a strike and meat on the hoof continues to go up, the question is, will vegetable rise, also, and if so, will the average American finally be forced to turn to the Chinese diet of rice and fish?

Those government investigators may as well start with the understanding that the cost of manufacturing hosiery is nothing compared to the cost of keeping it occupied.

Possibly, in course of time, a Mexican crisis will mean no more to President Wilson than being kept up at night until after 12 o'clock.

On the Spur of the Moment

So Long, Willie.

The surgeons rub their hands in gloe and sharpen up their saws.

And Willie's mother breathes a hopeless sigh.

Her heart is grieving and her face is pale because it's time to bid her Willie boy goodbye.

He is a husky youngster and was never sick a day.

But she can never tell what will befall.

He may be brought back to her in a basket or he may be brought back to her never more at all.

You cannot blame the lady for her heart throbs and her fears.

However vain and needless they may seem.

For little Willie's chosen for a sad fate it appears.

He has been picked for halibut on the team.

A Fable.

Once upon a Time there was a little boy the name of Percy who had Every One in the Home Town backed away off the Asphalt on the Style Thing. He could throw the Berry Wall stuff like a bricklayer throws Mortar and from Chaparral to Corbide he was the immaculate Kid. When he walked down Main street he used to look in the plate glass windows and smile at himself and Rearrange his Form. Beau Fremmel would have been considered a Puckerless Persimmon compared to Our Hero. Percy wore those Shoulder Pads so long that he began to believe in Them himself, which is always a Fatal Mistake. His rear elevation resembled the Back end of a Window Wagon such as we always see at Funerals and stylish Weddings, and so he decided to go on the Team at Jorkwater College, where he was to annex that mysterious Thing known as an Education. The coach said he would do. Percy knew that he had half of his mother's Horsehair Sock in those shoulders, but he didn't tip it off to the Coach. Our Hero Simply dug up the Earth until it came time for the First Game. Then he scared the Other Team to death by looking Fierce. The Girls Made a Fuss over Him. They made so much Noise about Him that you couldn't hear the Church bell ring in that Town. In Time they named a soda fountain drink after him and he had realized the dream of his Life. When he had finished his Four-Year-Course and had taken a post-graduate of Three Years he picked up the swiftest bit of Millinery among his hosts of Feminine admirers and married Her. Then Things began to Happen. His papa failed in the Soap Business and left suddenly for Europe and her Papa developed a sudden Financial Crouch that made it Begin to Look as though Our Hero would have to get out and look for a Lucrative position. He found one in the old Home Town and it consisted in Jiu Jitsu-ing trunks and hand baggage Down the Deppo. His Club Rags in Time were all cut down for the Olive Branches. Last time we saw Our Hero he was using a Kemp cord for a Gallus and was wearing a pair of Trousers that was as Shiny as a pair of framed Seals.

Lincoln Steffens is said to be collecting data for some more magazine articles about Wisconsin. But why waste time collecting data. Link used the data that supports his contentions, anyway. So why not remain at home and save carfare?—Wausau Record-Herald.

Democratic Prescription.
The conception that some people have of being "progressive" is, that they must sanction the squandering of the people's money by the present state administration. We believe this a fallacy, and as the burden of taxes is ever increasing, a remedy for this evil must be formed. A progressive need not necessarily countenance being mulched and picked dry. The democratic national administration, too, is progressive but it is marked by an entirely different code of morals. Economy and the best interests of the masses is here sought, and is, we believe, being found. Your "progressive" of the republican state administration are of an entirely different brand—their slogan appears to be: Tax the people for all they are worth—form new commissions—make huge appropriations—create soft berths among the faithful and we will entrench ourselves with a machine that is supreme!

What this state is badly in need of is a democrat governor who, while progressive in the real sense of the word, will protect the interest of the common people.—Jefferson County Union.

Heart to Heart Talks
By CHARLES N. LURIE
BEGINNING THE DAY ARIGHT.
When you rise for your daily round of toil or pleasure do you begin it with a smile or a frown?
Is the wind in the east, as it was sometimes for John Jandryce, or do the larks sing for you the song that tells of a day begun in the right spirit?
Not even the highest and best are exempt from the obligation to face each day cheerfully. And as for the others, why, they need all the sunshine they can extract from the glory of the sunrise.
Near the summer home of President Wilson at Cornish, N. H., lived four young girls, who were passing the summer in the beautiful New Hampshire country. They dwelt in a house on a hill swept by the mountain breezes. Every morning they rose early to see the president pass their temporary home.
One day they wrote to him:
This is just a little greeting from four girls in the house on the hill, who for several mornings have hastily dispatched oatmeal and muffins so as to wave you a good morning as you motored by on your way to work.
IT WAS PLEASANT TO BEGIN THE DAY WITH A REMEMBRANCE OF YOUR KIND SMILE AND FRIENDLY HOW.
Mr. Wilson took the cares of state with him on his visits to his summer home, but he found time to answer.
He wrote to the girls he was "glad to make friends in such a simple manner."
Later in the year the girls departed for their homes. A little later still came the time for the departure of the president. It is recorded that he cast his eyes vainly toward the house on the hill after going out of his way to pass the place.
Now—
The smile and bow of the president made the day begin brightly for these four young girls, who never met him personally. On the other hand, he looked for their greeting.
At the end he looked in vain. He was disappointed.
Are there not some in your household or among the strangers whom you meet who look to you for a pleasant morning greeting?
Do not dash their hopes with the wrinkled brow, the furrowed frown, the disagreeable word. Such have no place in the freshness of the morning, when Every day is a fresh beginning.
Every morn is a world made new.
Often as the early morning hours are tinged, so takes the whole day its color. The discord that is sounded in the morning grows echoes throughout the hours and makes inharmonious the day. The cloud that disfigures the morning sky casts its blackness upon noon and afternoon and night.

COUNTY SANATORIUM FOR TUBERCULOSIS PATIENTS IS URGED

Alvin C. Reis of Anti-Tuberculosis Society Gives Stirring Talk at Health Exhibit Saturday Night.

The assembly room of the city hall was again crowded on Saturday night to see the motion picture of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association and to listen to the talks on the great white plague. Father Henry Wilhelm, who presided at the meeting, spoke of the coming Red Cross Christmas Seal Campaign in Janesville. Dr. David Beaton gave an interesting talk on "Health as the Foundation of Work."

Alvin C. Reis, factory specialist of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association, spoke on the subject, "Stamping the Plague Out of Rock County." Mr. Reis said in part:

"Wisconsin has the third lowest death rate from tuberculosis of any state in the United States. The mortality from consumption in this state is less than one-half of what it is in Kentucky or Maryland. In Milwaukee the white plague claims only one-third of the victims proportionally that it does in Albany (N. Y.), Cincinnati or New Orleans. In fact, according to the last census, Milwaukee had the lowest death rate from tuberculosis of any city over 100,000 in the United States."

Methods of Fighting. "The white plague is being stamped out of Wisconsin mainly through two means: the visiting nurse and the county sanatorium. Five years ago there was not a visiting nurse in the whole state of Wisconsin. Today there are thirty-four. Five years ago there was not a single tuberculosis sanatorium in Wisconsin. Today there are eight, with a capacity of about five hundred patients."

Dr. Douglas Rache, Earl Claire, Manitowish, Oshkosh, Winnebago, and Milwaukee counties all have county tuberculosis sanatoria. Only last June the board of supervisors of Milwaukee county appropriated $600,000 for a new tuberculosis sanatorium. The significant fact is that this appropriation passed the board without a single dissenting vote.

"The four largest counties in Wisconsin are Milwaukee, Winnebago, Racine and Rock. The first three each have a county sanatorium. Need is imperative."

"The need for a tuberculosis sanatorium in Rock County is evident. During the past five years the white plague has claimed 270 lives in Rock county. There are at present, according to a conservative estimate, 250 living cases of tuberculosis in this county."

"In Janesville the recent mortality from tuberculosis is appalling. During the past eleven months, you have had resisted on your books thirty-six living cases of tuberculosis. Today you have on your books sixteen living cases. The other twenty are missing. Two of the twenty are in the state sanatorium at Wales. Eighteen are dead."

"Every county needs a tuberculosis sanatorium, for two reasons: First, the sanatorium cures tuberculosis from two out of ten to seventy-five percent of the cases. Second, the sanatorium keeps the advanced case of tuberculosis out of the home and prevents it from infecting the family and neighbors with the dread disease."

Cost Not Exorbitant. "The cost of building and supporting a tuberculosis sanatorium in Rock County would not be exorbitant. As support the state law provides that the state of Wisconsin will grant to the county five dollars per week per patient for every patient who is not able to pay. This may or may not be sufficient to meet expenses. In Milwaukee county the Greenfield sanatorium is supported by its patients for $5.34 per week. The building of the Rock County sanatorium would cost $25,000. This surely is not excessive for a county which last year spent approximately $27,000 on its insane asylum, $21,000 on road work, and $400,000 in all."

Christmas Campaign. "The Red Cross Christmas Seal campaign in Janesville this year aims to make an effort for a county tuberculosis sanatorium. The people of Janesville who want to save the lives of their fellow-men and women are going to put their heart and soul into the Red Cross stamp campaign to drive the curse of the white plague out of Janesville."

INCENDIARY FIRE DESTROYS LAUNCH
Craft Belonging to Cornelius and Melvin Oas, Burns Early Sunday Morning.

Fire, undoubtedly of incendiary origin, at one o'clock Sunday morning destroyed the five hundred dollar launch belonging to Cornelius and Melvin Oas, who reside at 373 Glen street, and only the haste of the guilty party in making his escape prevented him from firing the boat house situated on Goose island.

The boat was too large to be hoisted inside and was anchored to the door. Whoever set the fire was forced to climb over the structure, drop into the boat and start the fire, unless a boat was used in committing the crime. Investigation Sunday morning showed that kindling, saturated in kerosene, had been piled against the side of the boat house, but the flames were checked because of the wet wood. If the miscreant had used more care in igniting the kindling three adjoining boat houses containing launches would have been set afire, causing a serious loss.

A still alarm brought the fire department to the island and after seven hundred feet of hose had been laid, the firemen were able to throw a stream on the burning boat. Flames had gained headway enough to catch hold in the bottom, causing the craft to sink. The launch is declared to be a total loss and only a small amount of insurance was carried. Mr. Oas was unable to account for the incendiary, stating that he knew of no one who would take such measures to gain personal revenge. Fire Chief Henry Klein has reported the case to the Madison authorities.

The Theatre

"QUO VADIS," the superb photo drama reproduction of Henry Sienkiewicz's world famous novel, comes to the Myers theatre for three days, beginning Thursday, Nov. 20, and it looks as though George Kleine's remarkable production will establish a wonderful record for the Myers theatre in Janesville.

Aside from the many spectacular features there is an undeniable fascination about the story of Vinius' passion for the sweet Lydia and the adage that the "course of true love never runs smooth, etc." is proven as far back as A. D. 66 and 68 by this very picture romance. It is human and human nature is the same today as it was in the days of Nero and all the other Caesars and Roman emperors. And that is what the public likes whether it is novels, dramas, paintings or photo dramas.

There has been much wonderment at the magnitude and beauty of some of the scenes, notably the interior and garden scenes. But the locale is Italy where landscape beauty is still a world sight. The Cines company of Italy is composed of many of the wealthiest men of Rome and the Baito of Italy is also said to be largely in-amusement, instruction and inspiration and fully merits the great success it has achieved.

Reform in Stage Dressing.

Lillian Russell, due in this city Tuesday, Nov. 25, at the Myers Theatre, at the head of the John Cort Feature Festival, is one of the most particular dressers on the American stage. Nor is her demand in this respect confined to herself alone, but to the individual members of her company as well, a fact that is attested to by any manager for whom she has ever played. During the rehearsal of a production she spends a great deal of her time in the wardrobe room with the costume makers, and it is the surest thing imaginable that there is no substitution in any of the many gowns in her production.

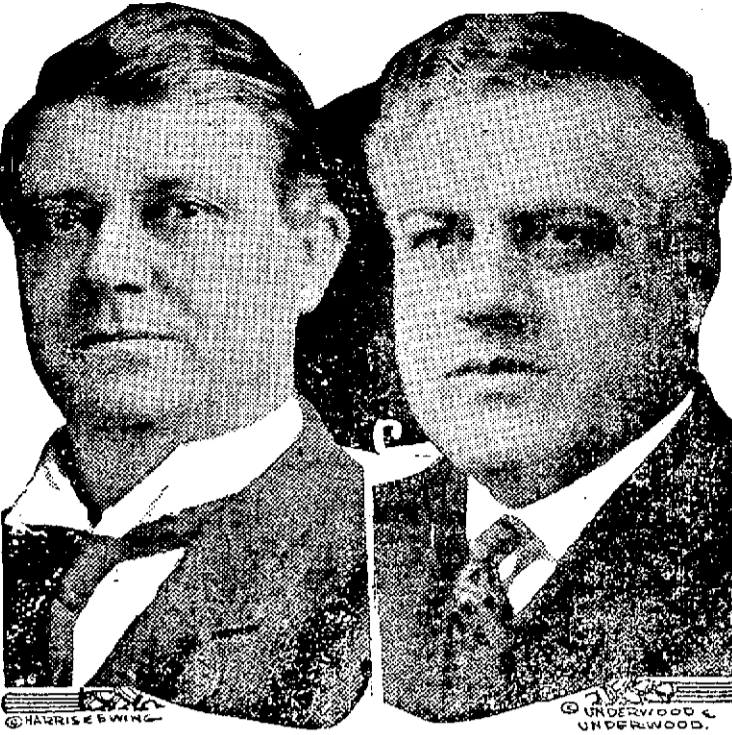

When Miss Russell entered the theatrical business as a star it was the practice of the managers to use satin for silk, cotton hannels for velvets, machine made lace and other inexpensive articles which would not now be tolerated in a first class production for an instant. At the time of her debut, Miss Russell spent much of her earnings in order to have real dresses, and she used the excellent argument that if even the managers been in vogue for years—she then took up the cudgels for others of the company. When Miss Russell advanced to stellar honors, one of the most rigid clauses in her contract was concerning the real dressing of her company, and the result is that every player in her organization is attired in real fashionable gowns of genuine material, not merely cheap tinsel of the stage, so common in the ordinary production. The celebrated beauty is said to wear no less than eleven gowns in her act in the Cort organization.

"Stop Thief."

"Stop Thief," the new Cohan & Harris farce, is a veritable laughing cyclone, punctuated by many exciting moments. It is said to be a pyramid of thrills. Absent minded people who cache valuable articles and are then unable to remember the hiding places, a peculiarity condoned under the cloak of kleptomaniac, are so realistically characterized that the events leading up to the final denouement form a series of laughing climatic surprises as unconventional as they are thrilling. "Stop Thief" is a work by Carville Moore, a new man in the field of farce writing. His first effort has stamped him as a man with ideas that one would only expect from a confirmed thief. The same company which remained at the Gaiety Theatre, New York, all last

UNDERWOOD TO QUIT HOUSE LEADERSHIP, SOON; PALMER OR KITCHIN SUCCESSOR

Two representatives seek the house leadership, soon to be vacated by Oscar W. Underwood, who expects to be the next senator from Alabama. They are A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania and Claude Kitchin of North Carolina. Kitchin has the advantage of being the ranking member on the ways and means committee next to Underwood. Palmer, however, enjoys unusual prestige as a friend and confidant of President Wilson.

DOES NOT CRUSH KERNELS

A New Nut Chacker Which Exerts Just the Right Pressure.

DAMAGING THE MEAT. The hand-crank has been recently brought out. It is made of metal and is secured to the edge of the table. There is one fixed cap, while directly opposite to it on the end of a threaded handle bar is another cap. A slight pressure on one of the parts brings the two caps together and a sharp turn cracks the shell in such a manner that the kernel is not damaged in the least. The whole device is attached to this modest looking machine, which is more attractive than when crushed into many pieces.

terested in the company. Many of the wealthy nobility are stockholders and when these pictures were being made the stockholders gave special permission for the use of their gardens and palaces. By this means many of the gorgeous scenes were produced with comparative ease whereas to have built the grounds and palaces specially it would have taken several million dollars and rendered it a business impossibility. Special permission had to be obtained from the royal cabinet for the use of some of the buildings and assurance had to be given that none of the historic arabesques or marbles would be disfigured. Even with all the advantages at the disposal of the Cines company it is a wonderful achievement which could hardly be duplicated anywhere else than in "Eternal Rome." "Quo Vadis" furnishes of the attraction could not distinguish the difference from the front of the theatre, and that many men in the auditorium failed to notice the cheap substitute, the women present always had their eyes open for detail in dressing, and to these Miss Russell appealed. It wasn't long before she received enough flattering criticisms from women in the newspaper profession to vindicate her judgment and with these criticisms all carefully preserved for reference, she carried her argument for correct and costly dress to the managers. When told that her ideas were foolish, she displayed the newspaper clippings. After many hard-fought battles she was able to have her managers supply her the best afforded in the sartorial markets.

With this tremendous victory—for it certainly was one of importance, considering the methods which had out copies of his poems which he sometimes sold for a night's lodging. The poems read so well that literary critics began to praise Homer, and within a few years he was the greatest poet of his time. His name kept growing until Grecian towns were compelled by law to read his works at certain festivals, and Aeneas went to war with Ionia because the latter claimed him as an old home boy.

Homer wrote the Iliad and the Odyssey, both full of wonderful adventures, which were not probably entirely true. His trade is still followed by hundreds of blind men who sing on the streets, but who do not become as famous as Homer, for several reasons—one of which is the fact that they insist on singing their own songs, as he did.

CAN OPENER

Pair of Spiral Blades Cut Whole Top Out in a Jiffy.

A can opener that is intended for quick work, such as is required in hotel and restaurant kitchens, has been designed by an Arkansas man. A spirally curved cutting blade that forms two heart-shaped sections is attached to a T-shaped handle. At the bottoms of the sections are sharp points. To use this tool the cook has merely to press down upon it until it has sunk through the top of the tin, then to the handle, and give the implement one twist around PRESS DOWN AND TURN AROUND, and the entire top of the can is removed as swiftly and neatly as you wish. Where a number of cans have to be opened quickly, this device is an obvious improvement over the type that slowly saw through the tin. Furthermore, there is here no danger of cutting the fingers on a jagged piece of lid.

HOMER

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Slwash."

HOMER was a citizen of Greece who lived so long ago that some difficulty is found in celebrating the correct centenary of his birth. He was a blind man, and grew up without many advantages; also without a job.

Homer had a god voice, however, and he could sing the Grecian language with fitness and in a flowing, eloquent manner. Therefore he did not worry about work, but procuring a second hand harp and a pair of newly half-soled sandals he set out through Greece, singing songs of his own composition.

For many years Homer kept up this occupation. It was a healthy life, and he grew old untroubled with dyspepsia or liver complaint, but he endured many hardships. Time after time the police of Aegle, Ionia and other flourishing communities yanked him up for begging on the streets.

without a license and gave him the alternative of getting out of town or going to the works. He was ragged and unkempt, his beard looked like a perambulating haystack and whenever he broke the E string of his faithful old harp he had to put up his sandals for security before he could buy a new one.

Homer kept on composing more poetry and putting it to music until he could sing seven or eight hours at one sitting on the same poem. Each year he drew larger audiences, and some of the magazines were considering taking up his stuff, when he finally died of old age and inflammatory rheumatism, caused by sleeping on the rocky hillside of Thrace in the late fall, with a too well ventilated mantle for a quilt.

After Homer died, the people him up for begging on the streets.

MISS M' CART WEDS AT BARABOO HOME

Daughter of Mrs. W. Gollmar and Floyd Main of Evansville Married at Noon Sunday.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Evansville, Nov. 17.—Miss Vivian McCart, daughter of Mrs. W. Gollmar, was married yesterday at high noon at the Gollmar winter home in Baraboo, to Floyd Main, night operator at the place. The bride, who was known here as a portion of each year the family make Evansville their home. The groom is also a popular young man here and in Brooklyn where he made his home previous to his employment here. After a brief trip to Chicago the couple will be at home to their many friends in the Hanson home on Water street.

Mrs. T. Stony entertained a number of friends at a birthday party Friday.

George L. Pullen was a Janesville visitor Saturday.

Miss Bonita May spent Saturday with Brooklyn friends.

Mrs. Charles Jenkins was a Janesville visitor Saturday.

Mrs. Harmon Ellis of Brooklyn was a shopper here Saturday.

Will Allen and family of Stoughton spent Saturday with local friends.

Miss Viola Miller was a Madison visitor Saturday.

November 17, 1913.—The atmospheric pressure is high in the southeast, with generally fair weather in the Appalachian mountain region. A trough of low barometer extends from Manitoba westward over the Rockies to the North Pacific coast. There are centers of low pressure in the Red River valley, and off the North Pacific coast. These depressions are attended by cloudiness and precipitation in the Missouri valley and in the Columbia basin.

In the southwest the weather is generally fair. The temperature is not abnormal in any district.

Philately and History.

An interesting chapter in philatelic history, and in the history of Europe, is closed by the decision to suppress the foreign postal agencies in Crete as the result of the union of that island with Greece. Austria, Great Britain, France, Russia, and Italy have all maintained post offices in Crete, as in Turkey, and there is at the moment much speculation in philatelic circles as to whether the Levantine post offices maintained by the powers, among which Germany is also included, will not be closed as well.

Queerest of Trades.

Mr. Chesterton once wrote a book called "The Club of Quaker Trades." One of the queerest trades in real life is that of the elderly South London man who stands daily at a very congested crossroad and assists children over the thoroughfare. Some 10 years ago he started this occupation out of sheer benevolence, and has been doing it ever since. The small sums and the Christmas gifts he receives from the parents of the children serve to eke out his pension.

Why not keep posted on what the our supplies at supplies are everywhere.

Miss Lillian Burk.

When the beauty and the chivalry of the Southwest gather at the Fort Worth show on November 22, Arkansas will be represented by one of its most attractive young women. Miss Lillian Burk of Texarkana has been chosen from a number of eligibles as the Arkansas princess at the coronation of the queen, which will be one of the most spectacular features of the opening.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

RUDDY CHEEKS — SPARKLING EYES—MOST WOMEN CAN HAVE.

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician.

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, you will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter that one's system collects.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women, as well as men, take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets now and then just to keep in the pink of condition.

WISHING TIME AWAY.

THE ASTONISHING swiftness with which the years of life pass is something which everyone, or at least everyone over thirty, realizes. Birthdays fly by like the telegraph poles on a railway journey; the little pig-tailed girl down the street goes away to boarding-school for a year or two, and it was no longer than that—and when next we see her, she has become a young lady. The pig-tails are wound in a shining crown around her stately head, and the thin little legs which used to twinkle out from under her abbreviated skirts are decorously hidden in a grown-up gown. We go away ourselves for a year or two—surely it was no longer than that—we come back again, and lo! another year has passed. The young lady of boarding-school dignity is pushing a go-cart down the street. We wonder whose baby she has borrowed, and can scarcely believe it when our family tells us that she has been a matron for two years.

And so it goes. "We come to earth to cry, we grow old and then we sigh, older still, and then we die," as the Englishman says; and all with the dawning, breath-taking swiftness of the flash of a gull's wing, or, to be more modern, the passage of a moving picture film. And now to the point. Since we realize that all this is so, since we perceive all too well the evanescence of life and the most part regret it (for while we may admit that life is all a fleeting show, most of us are eager to stay and see the show a little longer), why should we be continually wishing that some period of time would pass even more swiftly? Time, you know, is just another word for life, and yet how often one hears people wishing time away! And for what trifling reasons!

"It doesn't seem as if I could wait for the twentieth of the month," says the young lady next door. We ask her why and she explains that the magazine containing the next installment of the most fascinating novel ever written comes out on that day.

"Oh dear! It seems as if Friday would never come!" sighs the little High School girl across the way. "What's Friday? Why, don't you know? Our big dance!" Foolish little girl, to wish away even a day of the happiest time of her life!

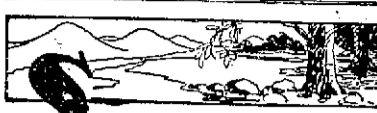

"How I hate this autumn weather!" says a neighbor of mine. "Every year it seems as if I could hardly wait for winter!"

Another neighbor, of the masculine persuasion, is always impatiently marking time from the twentieth to the twenty-eighth of each month. Why? Because the twentieth is about the date he runs out of money, and the twenty-eighth is pay-day.

Myself, I used to hate school bitterly, and if I could have wiped away the time from Monday morning to Friday afternoon of every week I would surely have done it. In my mind I divided the school week into five parts, and rejoiced at the end of each session that I was one-tenth nearer Friday.

So far as we know this is the only life we shall ever live on this earth. Let's live it, then; let's get the best out of every moment, every hour and every day, and remember that time is just another name for life, and not be continually wishing our lives away.

THESE POETRY IN PIE.

There is probably no pie more generally liked than pumpkin, when it is well made and properly seasoned. A cup of sifted pumpkin, or at most a cup and a quarter will make a good-sized pie. One or two eggs, a pint of milk, sugar, ginger, a little cinnamon or cloves, if one likes a dark pie, with a few drops of lemon extract gives a good flavor. The richer the milk the better the pie, of course.

Pineapple Pie.—Make a good rich crust, add the pineapple with enough sugar to sweeten, put a teaspoonful of flour sifted over and then place the top crust. Bake as usual. Long, slow baking brings out the flavor of pineapple as well as ordinary apple.

Cornstarch Pie.—Scald a pint of milk, add two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, the beaten yolks of two eggs, a pinch of salt and a quarter of a cup of sugar; boil, then pour into a crust. Cover with a meringue made from the whites with two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Brown in oven. Flavor with any desired flavoring.

Cream Pie.—Bake a rich crust, and when cool fill with sweetened whipped cream flavored with vanilla. Just before serving dot with bits of red jelly.

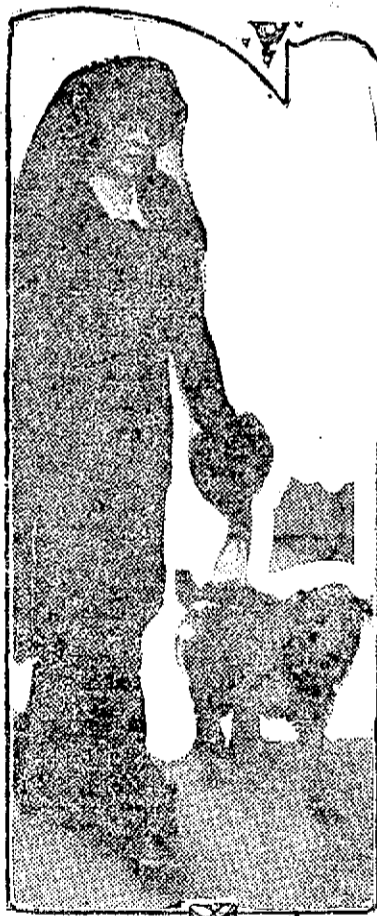

Sour Cream Pie.—Take a cupful of sugar, chopped raisins and sour cream; add one egg well beaten, one-half teaspoonful each of cinnamon, nutmeg and salt, a fourth of a teaspoon of cloves and a teaspoonful of vinegar. Bake with two crusts.

Apple Custard.—Add a cup of sugar to a cupful of grated apple, two eggs well beaten, one cup of sweet cream and the grated rind of a lemon. Pour into a pie plate lined with pastry, and bake.

Any fruit may be put into a baked shell, covered with egg white and baked, making a very attractive pie.

Miss Vivian Potts, seventeen, a Chicago girl, wants $25,000 from E. E. Miller, nineteen, a bank employee of that city, for alleged breach of promise.

"Miller has been in constant attendance on my daughter for two years," explained the girl's father. "He has promised both her and us many times that he would marry her, and last September went so far as to buy a marriage license. Over a year ago he 'kissed a girl at her head' and forced her to take some medicine that he had bought. Recently he wanted her to go to a physician. When she refused, he struck her on the mouth. He often said he had plenty of money."

Every Day Talks for Every Day People

By FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

This is Monday morning! Is it blue Monday in your home? And if so, why? Did you ever stop to think that a great deal of the bustle and confusion of Monday morn may be eliminated; that with a little careful planning you can do your week's washing much easier than you are now doing it? Systemize your work! "Same old phrase," you say. "We're weary of it." Still right in the following of the advice given in that short sentence lies the solution of a great many of your vexing household problems. The business man is sure what he is going to do before-hand. No hap-hazard methods for him. He plans first, executes afterward.

Do we women do that? Hardly! We rise and wish the washing was done! This may or may not be a "first aid." It never did my washing. Did it yours? No two women run their homes alike; consequently its problematical to know what to say to meet with universal approval. However with the thought in mind that some may benefit by these suggestions we submit them.

Bear in mind we're dealing with the plain people. There's a lot of us. Our income will not permit of a woman coming in, or of our sending our washing out.

We want to be through by noon, if possible, to have the home not like a Chinese laundry when John and the "wee ones" come in.

As their appetites never takes a downward slide because its Monday it's a wise plan to try and have half of the Sunday roast, a pan of baked beans and a simple dessert for this meal. If a pudding isn't hard to prepare, just plain boiled rice with butter, sugar and raisins beat in while the rice is hot. Don't spare the butter or the raisins—they are fine for the general health of your growing band.

Is it necessary to say comb your hair before you start your laundry work. If I were a man I'd never live peacefully, quietly with a woman who wanted to finish all her work before she combed her hair.

To have the clothes looked over and sorted before beginning is helpful and this can be done in a few moments on Saturday afternoon, after bathing the children.

This is a good time to change the bed linen too—it simplifies the soiling of the laundry. Many women soak the clothes the night before. This has its good points. Most women have a washing machine, or should have.

I've tried out several makes, had them down to the house on approval, trying to find one that would be cheap and efficient.

The electric washer leads them all. But as we all cannot afford the electric, we will say the washing machine that is run by water-power is fine. If you have not running water in your home a hand run machine is good—far ahead of the back-breaking, nerve-racking board.

The little ones' clothes, dresses and waists may need rubbing a bit, also John's shirts, but don't rub what the machine will do. John can get another washing machine—your place can't be filled—not satisfactorily. You are a decidedly important person in that little sphere of yours. What would John and the "wee ones" do without you? Do your washing—yes! But do it systematically.

That's what you want, and that's what Calumet is guaranteed to give you.

It is sure in perfect leavening and raising qualities, in wholesomeness, in purity.

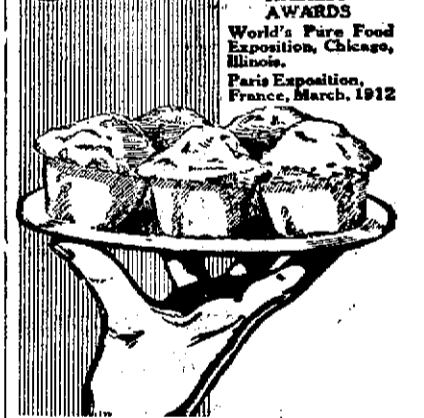

Perfectly raised, meltingly tender biscuits, cakes, muffins, griddle cakes, are bound to result from its use.

Calumet goes farther than other baking powders—and is moderate in cost.

Insist on it at your grocers.

LONDON IS FEARFUL OF SYLVIA'S ARMY

Sylvia Pankhurst.

"It's the argument of sticks and stones from London's east end that's going to give us the vote, and I, for one, am not going to rest until we get it," said Sylvia Pankhurst in a recent speech, foreshadowing the establishment of "Sylvia's army," which is now being formed. It is made up principally of toughs, and contains 130 women.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is a girl not quite seventeen too young to marry?

(2) If the man she is to marry is in another city a long distance away, busy, do you think it would be all right for the girl to go where he is to be married?

(3) Is an evening dress that has very small plaits around the hips and lace at the bottom in style?

(4) When a girl is engaged to a boy and he asks her what she wants for a Christmas present, do you think it is all right for her to tell him?

(5) Is there any harm in a girl going to public dances once in a while if she is with good company?

(1) I think she is too young to marry.

(2) A man should always come and get his bride, if possible, but if it is not possible she may go to him if one of her parents or some older relative who can be trusted goes with her.

(3) Evening dresses are very full about the hips and drawn in at the feet, with clinging draperies.

(4) Since he has asked her she might express her preference, but it should not be anything that he cannot easily afford to buy for her.

(5) It is not like any of my girls—or boys, either—to go to public dances. The influence there is never good for young people. Go to dancing school or to small private dances where you know everybody.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am eighteen and keeping company with a young man my same age.

(1) Is it too late to be out with him evenings?

(2) When he asks me to go to certain places, should I first ask my parents before I give him my consent?

(3) It is rather embarrassing to say "I will have to ask mother."

(4) What would you suggest to be used on the face for pimples?

Gwendolyn.

(1) If you are not out more than once a week until that hour it will do no harm. But oftener than that would cause you both to lose sleep that you need. He should be up bright and early to attend to his work, and you should sleep enough to keep fresh and pretty.

(2) I think he will like you all the better, my dear, if he finds that you love and respect your parents. Always remember, too, that your parents love you and wish to guard you from harm; therefore tell them about your young man, where you wish to go with him, when you will be home, and all that, so that they may know where you are and that you are safe.

(3) Quantity of water and a good mild soap (imported castile is good), and a good cleansing cream. Massage the face with the cream and wipe it clean every night. Prick pimples with a sterilized needle and gently press them out.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl seventeen years old.

(1) I would like to know of some way of making money by writing at home, as I have to stay home with an old person pretty much.

(2) What would you do if you liked a gentleman very much and he would not go with you after you had not kissed him good night?

(3) What kind of coats are going to be the style this winter?

GOLDEN ROD.

(1) You might try writing for the newspapers and magazines, but I'm afraid you would have many disappointments, my dear, and make very little money. You see, experience is needed and you try making something that you know how to do very well, and selling it to your friends and asking them to advertise it for you? The home shops might sell it for you on commission.

(2) Forget him. He isn't the right sort.

(3) Both long and short coats are being worn, most of them cutaway at the front and very narrow at the bottom.

No Doubt About That.

"I wouldn't say she is pretty," said the Simple Mug, as the right-haired woman of doubtful age handed her money to the conductor, "but she is passing fare."

SERVICE GIVEN OVER TO BLIND STUDENTS

CHOIR OF STATE SCHOOL GIVES
SACRED CONCERT AT BAP-TIST CHURCH.

ADDRESS BY HOOPER

Contentment and Happiness Come
From the Task Well Done
Says Institute Superintendent.

The student choir of the state school for the blind had charge of the music at the First Baptist church last evening and Dr. J. T. Hooper, superintendent of the school, gave the address. There were a number of students and teachers of the institute present for the services. Dr. Hooper, who filled the auditorium of the church and overflowed into the gallery was present to enjoy the fine singing of the students who led with hymns and sang several chorals numbers in a delightful manner. Miss Lillie Lohry, who has a soprano voice of exceptional sweetness and purity, gave a solo number, Gail's "These Are They." Prof. Bergmann, organist at the institute, presided at the organ last evening.

Mr. Hooper prefaced his remarks with a few words concerning the young people of his school, at the same time extending a cordial invitation to Janesville citizens to call at the institute more frequently. Visitors were welcome at any time, he said, as every one connected with the school was anxious to demonstrate what was being accomplished at the state institution.

"The boys and girls at our school are normal young people," said Mr. Hooper. "They have exactly the same interests, the same vitality, the same emotions as other boys and girls. The only difference is that they have one handicap, their vision is defective. They do not need or want your pity or your sympathy or your admiration that they can do things as well as they do them. They want merely their opportunity, their chance, to take their place in the world of affairs; they want your recognition of their true worth and ability and they want your encouragement. They are normal young people, I say, and many of them are brighter and smarter than the average boy and girl who is not handicapped with lack of sight. They have alert, active brains, eager to learn."

As a text for his talk Mr. Hooper took a part of the fifth verse of Hebrews 13: "Be content with such things as ye have."

In spite of the luxuries and comforts and conveniences which are afforded to the people of today on every hand there is still the desire for something more, for something better, for something new and for some kind of a change, declared Mr. Hooper. This spirit of unrest was to be found on every side and among all classes of persons. Even the rich with their opportunities to supply every want are continually looking for something that they haven't got. Even our children with the wealth of indulgence that fond parents supply are discontented and want more.

The speaker placed emphasis on the fact that true greatness came only after an immense amount of constant and arduous toil, no matter what the line of endeavor, that the rich man is seldom the great man and that the great man is seldom rich. True greatness lies in service. Contentment is found only in the realization of a task well done. The only sure road to contentment is through service, the performance of a task for the joy of doing it to the best of our ability. In no other way can lasting happiness be obtained.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASE LOSSES TREMENDOUS

Health Officer Dr. S. B. Buckmaster
Quotes Figures Showing Estimates for City of Chicago.

In the first six months of 1913, the loss in Chicago from three largely preventable diseases—scarlet fever, diphtheria and measles—was over $10,000,000. The bulletin of the Chicago School of Sanitary Instruction states: "It takes lots of money to prevent the waste of human life. Which is the more important?"

Human beings have an economic value, and if, by prevention of disease we can cut down the death rate, it becomes a matter of importance to the public. The Journal of the American Medical association says: "In reviewing the records of 1,500 admissions to the North Branch state sanatorium in the three and one-half years of this institution's existence, the authors found therein an interesting study in data relating to the pedigrees of certain cases. They learned that 124 distinct examples there occurred the incidence of at least three cases of pulmonary tuberculosis in a single family. These groups of infected people they designated as 'family clusters.' A study of these family groups leads them to believe that the locational distribution of tuberculosis may be due wholly or in part to the establishment of foci of infection following carelessess of individuals, usually adult open cases with diseased lungs, the safest channels for spread of disease and for furtherance of its activity is through the family lines."

THE MARSHAL

By
MARY RAYMOND SHIPMAN ANDREWS
Author of
The Perfect Tribute
The Better Treasure, Etc.

"Ah!" The little figure had sprung up and stood, fists clenched, threatening. One would have thought it was this second that the general had snarled Zappi.

"May I live a moment?" the general inquired. "Till I explain. Zappi did not die."

"Ah!" again, and Francois sank reeling on the stool, yet with stern eyes still on the general's face. The general laid the papers aside.

"Not he. He had seized the lance from a Russian whom he had killed—it was a most imprudent, especially in his dress he wore, which did not show the French uniform underneath. It was my turn then to play nurse. He was placed in one of the carriages of the Emperor and I cared for him as my own brother, and he came through it all, and went back to Italy, to his home."

The general's deep-set eyes were gazing now above Francois' head out through the narrow window where the boy's table stood across the mountain slope, to the blue distance.

"Alessandro, my friend," he spoke in his gruff tones, yet softly, "shall we little other again? So close through that black tone, so far apart now in the peace of our homes! These warm hands which cared for me when I was freezing and dying in Russia—I shall touch them perhaps never again."

Francois, forgotten in the general's very French access of emotion, squatted in front of him and regarded him in a practical peasant fashion. With that he spoke businesslike, fatherly.

"One should believe that the good thing will happen, and if the good God thinks best it will happen. Besides that, if one believes a thing to be true, it is all the same as if it were true."

The general, brought to the right about by this firmness, looked down with an enormous frown. "Ha! A little old marshal! It is lucky for me that I have you to support me. How came you to know these great thoughts, Monsieur?"

"It is my mother who says that," Francois answered, undisturbed by the sarcasm. "So, my Seigneur, because my mother says it, I know it to be the truth."

"Ha!" exploded the general again, and then, reflectively, "It is a simple and inconceivable philosophy on the whole there might be worse."

CHAPTER IX.

The Crown of Friendship.

In a great, carved, old mahogany desk of a Virginia house, in a drawer where are packets of yellowed letters tied up and labeled, is a letter written years later, referring to that earlier time in France. Perhaps this bit of the chronicle of Francois Beaupre could not be told so vividly as in these words of Francois written from his prison. He begins with the account of an adventure, of a ride for him.

"So dear Alix," he finishes this—the detailed story of his capture—"down went the poor horse, and over his head I spun into the ditch with a bump on the skull which dazed me. And when I came to these were the heavy Austrians around me, gapping to see, which they found out pretty promptly, as I have told you before, and also how I defied them. But it was a good ride, and if you will believe me, Alix, as I rode fast from my enemies that morning, with more than my own life depending on the landlord's horse, I was thinking most not of Prince, nor yet of the death or prison which awaited me, but all the time of those rides on Cor in the park of the chateau of Viqueux, when you and I went by turns over his lively head, and the seigneur stood by and laughed."

"You remember those rides? I have no need to ask you, but it pleases me to say 'do you remember'—it takes me out of this dark place into the beech wood, with its air and lights and shadows. Away back it takes me, to that first morning when Cor came and work was not even considered for the whole of the day, and the seigneur and the two grooves Jules I remember. I have forgotten the other's name; but I know well how he looked—and I, Francois, spent the morning in the park, and you and I by turns over his lively head, and the seigneur stood by and laughed."

closing on me for having made me a horseman—because that saved the Prince.

"In a great danger they say one thinks more clearly than usual—one's work with smoothness and at leisure. It was so during that ride for I followed out as I dashed along, hearing the shouts of the men back of me, the whole train of circumstances from one of those mornings with Cor in the park, to the adventure of life and death. It was the morning—now I will know before I say it—when Jean Philippe Moisson, in his lovely purple clothes, came mincing down the gravelled drive, as if afraid of spoiling his good shoes—and I think he was to the seigneur, who taught us to ride. Do you remember how your father thundered at him?"

"A strange monsieur to see me? Impossible! I am engaged. Tell him I will not see him."

"And Jean Philippe smiling, for all of them understood the seigneur, and saying gently, 'Yes, my Seigneur,' turned away with the message. And your father shouted after him—

"Stop! Come back there! What do you mean by that? Bring the monsieur to me. And the purple clothes disappeared and appeared again in a few minutes gleaming in the sun against the gray old walls. I can it all now, Alix—like a large violet blossom of a strange flower. And behind Jean Philippe was a tall man in a long traveling cloak, and behind him a tall little boy, and as he came the seigneur turned to go to meet them, and stopped and stared. And the monsieur in the cloak stopped and stared; and you, mounted on Cor, and holding the reins of the horse, watched curiously, because of the other child, and we saw how the seigneur suddenly began to shake as if ill, and then with a hoarse shout rushed to the tall man and threw his arms about him and melted him sobbed aloud. That was a strange thing to see the seigneur do, and I never forgot it. And to think that the child who stood there, shy and unknown, was Pierre! It seems unreasonable that ever there was a time when you and Pietro and I did not know one another well."

As I rode that day, with the Austrian army, I thought out the whole chain of events; how Pietro came and had stayed while his father, the marquis, went to America, and had fitted into our life and become dear to us, the big beautiful silent lad. And then, because of the death of the marquis, Pietro had come to the charge of your father, the seigneur, and how he and I went away together to the military school, always like little brothers and all the rest. I like to do it. My thoughts, in that wild dangerous moment, seemed to go in detail through all the morning that the Marquis Zappi arrived with his little son, the chateau, through the ten years of our life together, to my coming into Italy as his secretary—and from that, by a rapid step, to this castle prison."

The rest of the letter, which was later part of the story. That little Pietro Zappi should be led into the narrative by the hand of his closest friend was the object for which the letter was introduced, and accomplished, the course of history being back to the quiet Valley Delesmontes and the children growing up under the shadow of the castle towers.

The general, sitting in his library morning after the arrival of the letter in the quoted letter, stared at his old friend from under his heavy brows as if trying vigorously to convince himself of his presence. The marquis, an Italian of North Italy, was proud and quiet, had the air more of a student than of a soldier. A little the air, also, of an invalid, for his stooped and walked languidly, and a cough that came at times when he was talking, on that morning in the library, while the general listened; it was not the usual order of things. Work on the book had been given over; the young secretary had been ordered out to play, and outside, through the open window, one heard the children's voices and shouts and laughter. Alix and Francois were teaching Pietro to ride. Cor, the marquis turned his head toward a little as the sounds of gaiety floated in, and smiled gently, and the general frowned ferociously, which meant the same thing.

"So you see, Gaspard," the marquis went on in his quiet, reticent way, "that I have believed in our old friendship. I have taken for granted a welcome for my boy—I could not have it with another man. The voyage to America and my stay there will last it may be a year. I can not take the boy with me—he is too young to travel as I must. His brother died two years ago, his mother is just dead; he has no one to leave him in. I have thought of leaving him in Castelforte alone with servants. So thought of my old friend Gaspard, together and how suffering binds people, and I thought of words you said once, 'Caspard, if I could not go, should come when I needed you, no matter when or how you would be ready. So—though I know that men in general forget and live in the present, and I first to be recalled to dead friendships—yet I dared to believe you were different. I have brought Pietro to leave him with you if you will have him, while I go to America.' Nothing could have gone beyond the savagery of the general's face as the friend finished speaking. His eyes flashed fire, his eyebrows gathered into a line of bushy defiance, his mouth set grimly; he was a living threat of assault and battery. His voice came with a fierce rumble, well suited to his look. 'If you had not trusted me, I—I—' and with that the thunder-storm broke down.

"This old officer of Napoleon had, after all his battles and things, the simplicity and the heart of his own little girl. But he cleared his throat hurriedly with a bravado of carelessness and before the marquis could more than smile at him wistfully, he went on.

"It is all settled; there was no need of a word. Pietro is my son till you claim him from me, and glad enough to have him for as long as I may. I have a lien on a very good manner of boy already, young Francois Beaupre, whom I wished to adopt, but the lad would not give up his parents. And that makes me more eager for another. They will play better together and work better together, and they will be a good brace of brothers for my Alix."

"Your Alix," the marquis spoke reflectively. "She is a charming person, that little woman of yours."

Again the general looked as if in a terrific rage. "She is the best thing that lives," he announced and suddenly he what flashed into my head before you and Pietro had been here an hour?"

"What then?"

"I saw the children—your boy and my girl—together as if lifelong playmates over the big books in the window-seat there, and it came to me that it would be a joy to crown one's life if again in a few minutes gleaming in the sun against the calm eyes which met his."

"Yes," the marquis answered quietly. "It would be that—the crown of our friendship, if some day they might love each other. A marriage! And with that the general gave a great shout of laughter and leaned forward and seized his friend's hand in a bear's grip."

"It is unbelievable—it is heaven—it is a miracle, come true that day are here, Alessandro. And here we sit, after all these years, we old soldiers of Napoleon, and instead of talking of campaigns and battles, we plot a marriage for our children. A marriage! Listen to those babies shouting outside over the pony! Such thoughts are far enough from them—saps! And there is indeed plenty of time; they are only babies yet." His voice stopped, but his eyes wandered on the face of the other as if he could not find enough to convince himself of its reality. "Tell me about your journey, Alessandro, as you promised, and why you should go that unbridled distance, to that vague, just possible country, America, to get land."

So the marquis, sitting in the French castle, with the Jura Mountains standing far off as he lived his quiet life, bought tract of land in at the window and the children's voices calling to each other outside, told at length a story of negotiations, of business arrangements, of a tract of land not yet seen which was to become one day of vital importance to those careless children who played. He told, what the general partly knew, how many followers of the Emperor had bought tract of land under that new government, the United States and how several of them had gone out to this land, taking many things with them and looking to live there as the noble and dignified. How, through one of the Bonapartist emigres and through his connections in America, Zappi had been offered a chance to buy five thousand acres in the state of Virginia; how he had considered the conditions of Italy—that it was torn and worn with wars, that the Austrians were gaining in power, that his house was a marked one on the side of Italian liberty, and more to be among the first to be punished if Austrian power were triumphant; that if such a time came it might mean everything to him or to his son to have a home and a domain beyond the reach of the tyrant's hand. For that reason, he had thought it wise to cross the ocean and take possession of this land; and to do this quickly, because the marquis stopped and looked at the general, and the general looked back fiercely.

"What then?" the latter demanded savagely. "It is well, of course, to do things at once, when one decides. But is there any hurry in particular for you, you noble and dignified man? The marquis smiled his gentle smile. "A little hurry for me, Gaspard," he answered. "The doctors tell me that my heart is not strong; a man dies suddenly of that trouble sometimes."

And the general, impatient, indignant, threw his arm around his friend's shoulder. "They know nothing, doctors," he growled. "You are neither old nor weak, you are still talk. Come, then, Alessandro, and see if Pietro can stick to Cor."

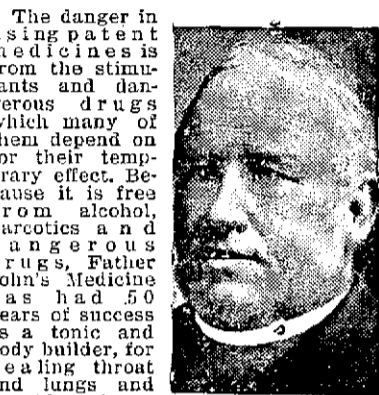

CHAPTER X.

For Always.

CLAIRE listened with serious calm eyes as her son told his story when he came home on the day of the new arrival at the castle. It was strange to have her boy, the playmate of the child who was to be married, tell of the seigneur himself. A pang came with the thought, for it seemed to separate the little lad from her. But the grandmother had said always, and the mother believed it, that the child would not grow up and live and die placidly in Viqueux as had his ancestors. There was a wider destiny before him; had not the hand of Napoleon himself laid that destiny on his baby's forehead? So, like plenty of other mothers, Claire put down the selfishness of a longing to keep her own child, and for the child's sake walked a little way with him on the road which was to lead him from her.

"The great gentleman has come who once saved our seigneur's life!" she repeated after Francois. "And the seigneur is glad. Of course he is glad, my Francois. And you ought to be glad too, and grateful to that gentleman because of all the good things our seigneur has done for you and which would not have happened, assuredly, if Monsieur the Marquis had not saved him. You should do everything that is possible for Monsieur the Marquis to show your gratitude."

BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU TAKE FOR COLD

Francois looked doubtful and a little depressed. "But, my mother, I do not do anything for the marquis that I can think of. He would not like me to bring him vegetables, I think. And Jean Philippe or Pierre, or else the maids carry the water for him; I could not do that as I could for you. There are so many people to do things that he would not want me."

Claire considered; this view was true; yet she wished her son to feel his part of the obligation of the marquis and to do that, mother. It will please me to do that."

passed down the corridor with a bouquet of violets in her hand. She was young and pretty and she knocked at Thaw's door.

"A hand appeared at the grating and a hoarse voice said:

"I guess them violets ain't for me, miss. I'm only in for stealing a kiss. The feller who murdered the New York architect has been shifted to No. 17."

A sharp tongued married woman who had been openly commiserating an elder spinster on her loveless state went on to talk volubly about her husband's health.

"Poor man, he has been a great sufferer for fifteen years," she remarked. "I can quite believe that dear," said the spinster, still smarting under the married woman's sarcastic sympathy. Let me see, it is just fifteen years since you married him, is it not?"

During a Catholic convention O'Sullivan got a job as a taxi driver. One day at the hotel he got a party of four that wanted to go to four different churches immediately. One wanted to go to St. Joseph's another to St. Paul's, another to St. Peter's, and the other to St. Mary's. O'Sullivan drove them to All Saints' church.
